Task 1: Complaint about Gym Membership

Excellent sample answer (written at around CLB 11–12, an estimate, not an official score)

Dear [Gym Manager's Name],

I recently joined your gym and have been impressed by the range of equipment and the welcoming atmosphere. However, I must bring to your attention an issue with the shower facilities, which I found to be unclean during my last visit. This detracted significantly from my overall experience, as hygiene is a priority for me after a workout.

To improve this, I recommend implementing a more rigorous cleaning schedule and perhaps assigning staff to monitor the facilities during peak hours. I appreciate your efforts in maintaining the gym and look forward to seeing improvements.

Sincerely,

[Your Full Name]

Task 2: Work Policy Survey

Excellent sample answer (written at around CLB 11–12, an estimate, not an official score)

Supporting Option A makes sense because remote work fosters a flexible environment that enhances productivity and work-life balance. Cutting out daily commutes and office distractions lets employees focus energy on high-quality work.

Also, modern communication tools ensure remote collaboration remains highly effective, aligning with progressive work trends. Employees can design their day around peak performance hours, not rigid office rules.

This reduces burnout from long travel or noisy workplaces. Companies might even lower overhead costs with less office use. It's a forward-thinking choice for today's workforce.
