Task 2: Greener Living: City Waste Solutions Survey

Excellent sample answer (written at around CLB 11–12, an estimate, not an official score)

Supporting Option A makes sense as enhancing recycling programs offers a broad, scalable way to reduce waste. Better infrastructure and awareness can divert tons of recyclables from landfills, saving resources and easing environmental strain. Composting targets just organic waste, with spotty uptake, while recycling's wider reach ensures bigger sustainability gains. This choice maximizes impact across households and businesses. More bins mean less litter, and education builds habits for life. It aligns with global eco-goals too. Long-term, it's the smarter path forward.
